

Indian Institute of Metals Short Professional Course (Online) on “Application of Engineering Materials:
(Sector wise Application, Development, Fabrication, Testing & Protection)”
(Course Number IIM-22-101)

18th - 20th October 2022, Session Timing: 10 AM to 2 PM (IST), each day

Objectives: This training program is intended to train individuals who are engaged in variety of field to choose right material for right perspective & to ascertain enhanced service life of machine parts & members.

Application Engineering is primarily based on studying the basic need of service condition, evaluating right parameters in terms of physical & mechanical properties & designing the composition.

In addition, program is intended to highlight right technique for production, quality control & testing of these materials before use.

Target Participants: Personnel engaged in Petrochemical, Refineries, Fertilizers & Chemicals, Pipeline, Aerospace, Mines, Infrastructures Power plants, Railways & so on.

Merits of the program: The interactive session provide opportunity to learn from other’s experience & also clear one’s doubt on any subject matter. It is designed to render opportunity to the participants to share their experience & learn the methods to improve their performance by employing suitable technique. The program also opens up doors for more job opportunities in the industry & help professionals to achieve their technical excellence.

The session will focus on the following aspects

- Application Engineering & Development of Materials (Ferrous & Nonferrous)
- Fabrication & Testing (Including specification) (Ferrous & Non-ferrous) (Testing includes both destructive & non-destructive)
- Degradation of Engineering Material & Protection (Including all types of corrosion & remedial measures)
